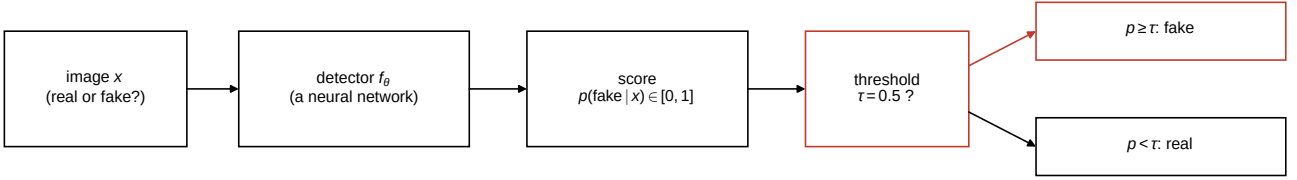
A deepfake detector gives one score per image, then a threshold decides



Training: show many labelled images and adjust θ. Generalization: the test images come from generators, cameras or compression that training never showed.

A detector that is nearly perfect inside one family of fakes can fail badly outside it.